THE LEARNED ASTRONOMER.

I knew a learned astronomer Who all things earthly spurned, And wandered through this pleasant land With countenance upturned. From early youth his habits were To hold aloof from men; He thought this old world's happenings But little worth his ken.

He saw no wonders in the trees Or in the waving grass— He never thought it worth his while To woo a pretty lass. And not a whit this good man cared For potentate or Pope; To him the greatest man was he Who made the telescope.

But sun and moon arose and set Precisely when he said; He knew whence each comet came And now jets down to earth. And for his plan to wipe the spots From off the glorious sun Among the brethren of his ilk He knew no man had won.

This good old deed went on high, But much to his concern. He found the knowledge gleaned while here Left nothing more to learn. With telescope from o'er a cloud, He now peers down to earth, And finds out strange and wondrous things About his place of birth.

THE NEW JUDGESHIP.

News from Washington City Yesterday About the Appointment.

The Washington correspondent of The Courier Journal yesterday said before leaving for their homes in Kentucky this week Senator Deboe and Representative Boring will call at the White House and try to have an understanding with the President concerning the offices in the Eastern Kentucky Judicial District.

Senator Deboe has not announced that he will endorse former Governor Bradley for the Judgeship, but the general understanding is that he will take this course, providing he has some assurance that Bradley will be appointed.

If, therefore, the President indicates that he will compromise on Bradley and give up Cochran for the Eastern District will carry out its part of the program.

It is understood that several friends of Judge Cochran will reach Washington within a few days to make a final talk for him.

Alex. P. Humphrey of Louisville, who is in Washington, will probably call at the White House with Commissioner John W. Jerkes in Judge Cochran's interest.

The Allegheny and Monongahela rivers are pouring out at a rate that threatens a flood in the Ohio Valley. More than an inch of rain has fallen at headwaters in both valleys. The river was 6 feet Saturday night, and in twelve hours had risen to 17 feet, and was rising at the rate of six inches an hour yesterday. At Davis Island Dam a flood is looked for, and police of both cities have been ordered to notify people in the districts usually flooded by a rise. The ice above Warren in the Allegheny had not broken at late reports, but the Allegheny river at that place is rising rapidly, having risen four feet in ten hours. The Monongahela River Consolidated Coal and Coke Company's latest reports that no flood can be looked for, as there is scarcely no snow in the mountains. The company has about 20,000,000 bushels of coal to ship.

THE longest "leaders" on most of the Democratic editorial pages hereabouts just now are the lists of candidates for office.

THE San Francisco Chronicle remarks that, as a sign of the times in passing, no babies are now being named after WILLIAM JENNINGS BRYAN.

"It never rains but it pours," says the ancient saw. In addition to its appointment as Private Secretary to Congressman KETCH, Editor ALLEN has his Cynthia Democrat bulging with hundreds of lines of political advertising at so much per. At his present gait it will reach a million-aires; then he'll be buying diamond gifts for some sweet girl and building a castle on a corner lot in Elysiumville.

THE Cynthia Democrat says Col. JOHN G. CRADDOCK slipped on an icy pavement at Paris, while he was flirting with some ladies on the way to the opera, and "painfully sprained his left wrist at the elbow." That accounts for it. We always know that, somehow or another, CRADDOCK was the one and only when it narrowed down to the matter of taking care of a free lunch. It's plain enough now—he has elbows in his wrists.

THERE is talk of a movement to consolidate two or three of the so-called Republican papers of Louisville, making a first-class, sure-enough Republican daily, with a man of ability and integrity as Editor.

—Many years ago, so the story runs, a Methodist Circuit Rider was journeying through Lewis county. Night came on; his horse was tired and the rider hungry. He reached a lowly cabin and sought food and shelter, where he was gladly granted. The evening wore on, and when bedtime arrived the good man suggested that it was his desire to have the family join him in prayer before retiring. "Yes, yes, that's a damned good idea," exclaimed the host, meaning to be positive rather than profane.

ONE of the beauties of Kentucky's taxing system is shown in a dispatch from Frankfort which says the State Board of Assessment and Valuation is deadlocked over the proposition of the valuations of the corporate franchises of private corporations for the purposes of state taxation.

The Board is composed of three members, Secretary of State HILL, Auditor COULTER and Treasurer HARRIS; and notwithstanding they have held numerous meetings and endeavored to agree upon valuations, they have failed to agree as to a method of arriving at them or the amount in the aggregate.

Secretary of State HILL, it is asserted, favors going to the limit, while Auditor COULTER and Treasurer HARRIS, disagreeing with him, are each in a class to themselves and are a little prospect of an early agreement.

John A. Bunting, formerly a freight brakeman on the Southern Pacific, has just ordered a $30,000 private car from the Pullman company. Bunting began his life ten years ago as the keeper of a railroad water tank on the desert near Tucson, Ariz. Then he was advanced when desired to take the position of freight brakeman.

He lent a man $170 and took as collateral a watch and a mortgage on 40 acres of land in Kern county, Cal. The mortgage was for $100,000. Bunting sold the watch and foreclosed on the Kern land. Recently oil was struck near the land. He resigned his position with the railroad and began to develop his property. He struck oil, and now is rated as a millionaire.

Bunting came into General Manager Filmore's office in San Francisco the other day and sent in his card. Mr. Filmore returned the reply that he was sorry he had no job for him, as Bunting had voluntarily resigned his position. Bunting said he wasn't looking for a job, but wanted to buy a private car. Mr. Filmore congratulated him and advised him to order a car with all the latest improvements, which would cost him $30,000, and meanwhile to rent a car from the Southern Pacific. This he decided to do.

FINDS GOLD IN THE DIRT.

Heap of Supposed Brass at Yale Peabody Institute Turns Out to Be Actual Jewelry.

A workman while engaged in sweeping out a storeroom in the Yale Peabody museum was stopped in his work by a professor, who noticed a piece of jewelry in the dirt. The professor was a small heap of brass. It looked peculiar, and he requested the workman to cease until he had made an examination of the metal. Soon after the professor went hurriedly into the cellar again and ordered the workman to remove every particle in the heap to the surface of the metal. When the heap of brass turned out to be $10,000 worth of gold in Actual jewelry.

How it became lost in the cellar is a mystery. It is supposed that the late Prof. O. C. Marsh, who was for years at the head of the Peabody museum, purchased the jewelry in his travels, and when he returned to Yale he deposited it in the cellar storeroom temporarily. Evidently he had forgotten all about it. No one knows how long the heap of gold had been lying there.

REFORM AT BELLEVUE.

Use of the Strait-Jacket Has Been Abandoned at the New York Hospital.

Use of the strait-jacket has been abandoned in Bellevue hospital, New York. This applies to both the alcoholic ward and the insane pavilion. The use of the strait-jacket has been hastened by the presentation of the grand jury, which said:

"We find that for many years mechanical restraint, in the nature of strait-jackets, ankle cuffs, and other like means have been commonly used in the Bellevue hospital, whereas their use has long ago been abandoned at the Manhattan state hospital, Bloomingdale, Matteawan, and most of the prominent institutions of the state."

Kings and Kings.

King Edward did not refer to "my country" in his speech at the opening of parliament, says the Chicago Times-Herald, so J. Pierpont Morgan has no kick coming.
